NEWS OF SCOTISDALE

A Little Quiet, But a Prospect of a Good Winter.

Scottsdale, Ariz., Aug. 28.—(Special Correspondence to the Republican.) These are quiet days in Scottsdale. Most of our people are or have been away to the mountains, the coast or at near camping points. The old reliable are still found at headquarters however, and are entertaining a din suspicion that they are having about as good and restful time as the rest.

The Underhill family and friends have returned from a short camping trip to the Verde river. Mrs. J. L. Davis and Mrs. Ferguson and children are still in that region but will return soon.

Rev. D. S. Gray spent a few days recently in visiting Scottsdale friends. Chaplain Scott has joined Mrs. Scott in California for an indefinite stay. His ranch is rented for a year. The chaplain does not succeed well in his efforts to cut loose from Scottsdale, as his friends expect to see him back at almost any time.

News has come that Mrs. Emma Padlock Telford, now in her New York home, will return, with her father, to make a permanent home in the valley. This is good news to her many Arizona friends, though not a great surprise to those who knew how restful this free, independent country life seemed to her after years of familiarity with the rush and restrictions of city life.

W. H. Gill is now on his way to the Papago Indians, among whom he will do missionary work for two months. His trip of a similar nature a year ago was very fruitful and much is hoped for this journey.

A wedding of unusual interest occurred at the Pima church at the Salt River mission a few days ago. The bride is Ella Williams, one of the very best and most interesting Pima women and the groom is Calvin Emerson, the efficient baker at the Phoenix Indian school.

Bertha Blount who is spending the summer in Los Angeles sends home the following description of a delightful visit to Long Beach: "I have just returned from a most delightful trip to Long Beach and my first visit to the ocean. Our party went down to the beach at 10:30 a. m. We paced up and down the pier until our picnic dinner was spread on tables in the pavilion. The afternoon we spent on the pier, in gathering shells on the beach and sitting under parasols on the lovely fine sand with which we played to our heart's content, some yielding to the seduction of sun bathing. To a 'child of the interior' the ocean seemed marvelous. They said it was unusually calm. A slight haze obscured our vision in most directions, but in one quarter we could see a high mountain promontory in the distance. The water near the shore was very red, caused by an earthquake at sea, we were told. Farther out it appeared a deep blue. For some unknown reason a remarkable phosphorescent display is now seen nightly on the beach. The like has never been known here before, but it is thought to result from earthquakes at sea. Moonlight, of course, counteracts the brilliancy of this display in a large measure. We were fortunate in that the moon was completely hidden during part of the evening. We wandered through the pavilion, under the pier and on top of it, and everywhere in order to view the remarkable sight from different points. As we walked under the pier the friction of our shoes on the sand made it glow and we seemed to be walking in fire. One of our party wrote our names in the sand with his finger and we could read it as he wrote. The great banks of breakers coming in and breaking into gorgeous colors of Nile green and sapphire blue presented a sight indescribable. Out on the pier, beyond the breakers, the whole ocean seemed to reflect stars or dashes of light from above, caused by the waves beating together. To one of the supporters of the pier, fastened by a rope, was a boat. The friction of the waves on its sides as it lay upon the water made it seem to be floating on a sea of fire. As we looked some men got into the boat and rode away. The effect was beautiful. "We were so entranced we could hardly tear ourselves away for a little sleep. We exhausted our vocabulary of adjectives and finally one of the party proposed that we just take a dictionary and gave it at the ocean and say 'Them is my sentiments.'"

SERUM, THEN MOSQUITOES.

Dr. Havard Changes the Order of Yellow Fever Experiments.

Havana, Aug. 28.—Surgeon Major Havard says that though he will not conduct further yellow fever experiments with infected mosquitoes on non-immunes, he has offered to allow infected mosquitoes to bite a man previously inoculated with Mr. Caldas' serum. If the disease does not develop the mosquitoes will be allowed to bite other men similarly protected. The mosquitoes to be used are those which recently bit two men, from the effects of which the men died.

Dr. Havard says that Dr. Caldas has two men whom he has already inoculated who are willing to be bitten by the mosquitoes. The matter was fully explained to them, but the explanation did not cause them to withdraw their consent to being bitten.
